DETAILED ACTION

1. Upon further review of applicant's presented papers received on 11/14/2005 and 12/12/05, the finality of the Office Action dated 9/8/05 is removed, and Prosecution on the Merits is reopened.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Logan et al (5721827) in further view of Ladd et al (6269336) in further view of Bromberg et al (6529889).

As per claim 1, Logan et al (5721827) teaches:

“ a system for conversational navigation comprising: a server comprising.....server” as server containing HTML web pages and FTP server (Fig. 1, subblock 101).

And a client (Fig. 1, subblock 103) accessing information thru an ISP (Fig. 1, subblock 121) downloading the document with the associated and needed information (col. 8 lines 45-63).

However, Logan et al (5721827) does not explicitly teach allowing the user to activate the content pages of use the logic to access dialog services, however, Ladd et al

(6269336) teaches the allowance of the user to access the dialog service and content pages via a server (col. 9 lines 1-10, wherein the mentioned application server for web pages accesses the content servers to pull-up the associated information – col. 10 line 60 – col. 11 line 11). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art of distributed services at the time the invention was made to modify the accessibility of Logan et al (5721827) information structure with user based allowance to content pages and dialog services because it would advantageously allow for access to such information using almost any type of network access device (Ladd et al (6269336), col. 2 lines 40-47).

The combination of Logan et al (5721827) in further view of Ladd et al (6269336) does not explicitly teach the content to be in a hierarchical document structure, however, Bromberg et al (6529889) teaches the content to be in a structured document, with associated links, to be used by the user (abstract, and col. 5 lines 25-55). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art of content providers to modify the combination of Logan et al (5721827) in further view of Ladd et al (6269336) with document based hierarchical content because it would advantageously allow the user to disseminate user information, and that particular content of useful information (Bromberg et al (6529889), col. 11 lines 35-41).

As per claims 2,23, the combination of Logan et al (5721827) in further view of Ladd et al (6269336) teaches accessing the document with associated links (Logan et al (5721827), col. 10 lines 20-30; col. 9 lines 13-21; col. 29 lines 40-60).

As per claims 3,4,19,20 the combination of Logan et al (5721827) in further view of Ladd et al (6269336) in further view of Bromberg et al (6529889) teaches the HTML format (Logan et al (5721827), Fig. 1, subblock 129) capable of speech output (Logan et al (5721827), fig. 6, subblock 421-441) for the client to process the speech (Col. 3 lines 13-19).

As per claims 5-13,22, the combination of Logan et al (5721827) in further view of Ladd et al (6269336) in further view of Bromberg et al (6529889) teaches a dialog interface between the user and the service provided, with content tables and user logs (Logan et al (5721827), col. 15 line 41 – col. 16 line 56).

As per claims 14-18,21,24-26, the combination of Logan et al (5721827) in further view of Ladd et al (6269336) in further view of Bromberg et al (6529889) teaches different levels of access to the user (Logan et al (5721827), Col. 17 lines 22-29; col. 18 lines 11-35), via the server/client architecture (Fig. 1).

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. Examiner notes the introduction of the Bromberg reference to address applicant's concerns regarding the claim limitations pertaining to a hierarchical structured document with content.

Art Unit: 2626
